John Pavlopoulos is an Assistant Professor specializing in Machine Learning for Information Retrieval and Data Mining for Large Document Collections at the Department of Informatics, Athens University of Economics and Business. He also holds affiliations with Archimedes/Athena RC and Stockholm University. Previously, he served as a Senior Lecturer (fixed-term) in NLP and Data Science at the Department of Computer and Systems Sciences, Stockholm University, and was a visiting scholar at the Venice Centre for Digital and Public Humanities, Ca' Foscari University of Venice. His research focuses on Machine Learning for Natural Language Processing (NLP), with an emphasis on applications in Digital Humanities. His work has been published in top-tier journals such as Nature and leading NLP conferences such as ACL. He is a member of the Editorial Board for the magazén International Journal for Digital and Public Humanities, and he currently Natural Language Processing and Data Science courses. His analytical CV is available in Greek and English.